Strike-Freeze Talks On

By PETER BRUTON

B.C. Power Commission officials have been holding secret meetings with labor and contractors in a move to prevent strikes or lockouts during the duration of the Columbia River hydro power project, it was learned yesterday.

A hint of the negotiations was given in a speech by Attorney-General Robert Bonner in winding up the budget debate yesterday.

Later Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, chairman of the power commission, confirmed that there had been informal discussions between contractors and unions and himself.

There was no suggestion, he said, that wages be pegged for the 10-year duration of the project.

"The purpose was to ensure there is no stoppage of work," said Dr. Keenleyside. "The method of handling relations between unions and contractors was discussed. The talks were only preliminary but they were promising."

The situation came to light when Mr. Bonner warned that it was difficult to give a reliable estimate of the final costs of the $450,000,000 project because of factors which were hard to control.

He said this applied also with respect to costs associated with "hourly rates of pay and salaries."

"Great restraint will have to be part of the picture while the project is under way because we could be bargained out of existence," said the attorney-general.

"You know there have been discussions," said CCF leader Robert Strachan.

Mr. Bonner said it was a real problem and some sort of equation had to be worked out to prevent the situation from upsetting the cost of the whole project.

"All prices are involved," he said. "But a large part of the costs are those of hourly rates and salaries."

The attorney-general said that once the project was started there could be no turning back and large costs would ensue in penalty payments if the project wasn't completed on time.

RHODESIA ON WAR FOOTING

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (UPI)—Federal Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky put this country on a war footing yesterday and warned he will use "every means" to prevent Britain from extending voting rights to neighboring Northern Rhodesia's vast Negro population.

He cancelled leaves for 5,000 European and African policemen in Southern Rhodesia and put 10,000 police reservists on alert as the federation's racial crisis deepened. These new orders came only 48 hours after 3,000 militia reservists were called to active duty.

FIGHT PROPOSALS

Welensky also summoned the federal assembly into emergency session and said he will ask its support to fight the British proposals "by every means."

Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, both British protectorates, comprise a federation with Southern Rhodesia, which is a self-governing territory. Welensky is chief executive official of the federation.

British proposals to grant Negroes in Northern Rhodesia wider voting rights and a bigger role in the protectorate's government under a new constitution have stirred deep fears among British and European whites.

OUTNUMBER WHITES

Northern Rhodesia blacks outnumber whites by 2,200,000 to about 70,000. White leadership also is opposed to the emergency session and said he will ask its support to fight the British proposals "by every means."

The crisis has been complicated further by the dissatisfaction of black nationalists over Britain's proposals, but for a different reason. They feel Britain has not gone far enough in meeting their demands.

School Tax Howls Prove False Alarm

By R. O. MARRION

First howls over the provincial government's new school cost sharing plans dwindled yesterday with realization that there likely will be no major increase this year in local school taxation.

Municipal leaders, although disappointed at their failure to persuade the government to take over a greater percent of total school costs, were relieved to find the taxpayers' outlook apparently not very much darker than before.

Education Minister Peterson said Thursday the basic mill rate for education operating costs will be increased this year from 12 mills in municipalities and nine in rural areas to 16 mills.

But the education department pays "approved" operating costs above revenue from this basic local taxation, and the minister announced an upward revision of teachers' salary scales the department will approve.

Saint Patrice

Ghana's Church of Africa Christian sect yesterday proclaimed slaughtered ex-Congo premier Patrice Lumumba a saint. Two aides slain with Lumumba were similarly proclaimed.

Murderer Chuckles At Death Sentence

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Nelson Langlois, 46, Friday was sentenced to hang June 16 for the murder of Oliva Martin, 63, and Eugene Dupuis, 67, last Oct. 2.

Courtroom witnesses said Langlois appeared to chuckle silently as he was sentenced.

Winter Work 'Lot of Hokum'

Municipalities are stuck with the major share of costs on winter work projects while the senior governments get "all the free publicity," Ald. Michael Griffin said last night.

He told a special public meeting called on behalf of city council to get a cross section of community views on winter works that the public was being misled by federal and provincial claims that are really "an awful lot of hokum."

"These senior governments are spending little on winter works and expecting the municipalities to pick up the major share of costs," said Ald. Griffin. "We have a file three-quarters-of-an-inch thick, filled with approved winter works projects. But with its limited funds the city isn't able to go ahead."

He said until the public is aware of the true situation "we are never going to have an honest-to-goodness winter works program."

ATTENDED BY 40

Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood, chairman of council's public works committee which called the meeting attended by some 40 people in the council chamber, said 10 previous unemployed men had been working for the past four months on winter works projects in Victoria.

Alan Macfarlane, Liberal MLA for Oak Bay, said he was "shocked" to learn that only 10 jobs were filled.

MLAs ABSENT

The absence of all the other MLAs representing the Greater Victoria area was noted by Robert Barrie, president of Victoria Labor Council. He said the provincial government should insist on use of B.C. products in carrying out its contracts, thus providing more jobs here.

Ald. A. W. Toome said, however, the 10 jobs represented 800 man-hours of work. He pointed out that it could have been 100 men employed for a week of 40 hours, getting one hour's work.

FIRST PROJECT

Ald. Toome urged local business groups to form action groups with creation of more jobs as their "No. 1 project." He said legislation exists under which aid for establishing new businesses can be obtained from Ottawa. But it is left up to local groups to take the initiative.

Kidnapped?

This is Edith Kiecorius, 4, who disappeared Wednesday afternoon from sidewalk in front of relative's home in New York. Search by 100 detectives and 25 members of emergency squads has failed to turn up any trace of her.—(AP Photofax.)

Nearly the Same

In the Greater Victoria school district, secretary-treasurer T. L. Christie estimated the reduction in the share of teachers' salaries local taxpayers must pay may nearly balance the increase in the basic tax, so that the total school tax rate may stay nearly the same.

Similarly in rural Sooke school district, secretary-treasurer L. W. Wheelon thought the changes would have a counter-balancing effect. However, he feared the higher "approved" grant schedule for teachers' salaries might be treated as "a jumping off place" by teachers in future negotiations.

Mr. Peterson said on this in the legislature: "In the past there has been a tendency for teachers to interpret the salary grant schedule as a grant per teacher," he said, "which it definitely is not."

Mr. Christie estimated that on last year's assessment base an extra four mills of basic levy would bring in $872,000 more this year. But on top of last year's basic levy taxpayers had to pay at least $800,000 in "unapproved" teachers' salaries which they won't have to pay this year.

Mr. Wheelon thought that because Greater Victoria has more teachers at the top of the salary scale, the counter-balancing effect might not be quite as great in Sooke.

Indians' Plea Sent to Queen

BRANTFORD, Ont. (UPI)—Chiefs from the nearby Six Nations Indian Reserve have written to the Queen to get representation at the March conference of Commonwealth prime ministers.

The chiefs claim their country is separated from Canada and should be represented.

Eight Men Feared Lost

VANCOUVER (CP)—Eight men, all from the greater Vancouver area, are believed lost in the sinking of a 65-foot seine fishing vessel, the Northview, in storm-tossed Finlayson Channel 300 miles northwest of here.

Russian Bags Searched

STEYNING, England (Reuters)—Nikita Khrushchev's son-in-law angrily charged Friday that 31 Soviet students visiting Britain "had their luggage searched and scattered all over their rooms" at a London hotel Thursday night.

"Is this the way that Great Britain works for peaceful co-existence?" asked Alexei Adzubei, editor of Izvestia.

Adzubei made the charge before a British-Soviet conference here.

In London, Scotland Yard detectives said they had received "no complaints."

Slow Loading of Grain Disgusts Soviet Skipper

VANCOUVER (CP)—The ridiculous slowness of grain loading facilities in Vancouver complained it took him 12 days to load a grain shipment here which he could have taken aboard in little more than one day in Russia.

Capt. Ivan Neschadimov of the freighter Tiksi said he was disgusted with what he called "the ridiculous slowness of grain loading facilities in Vancouver." The Tiksi, the first of five Soviet ships here to pick up a total of 200,000 tons of grain, took 12 days to take on its 10,700-ton shipment, and on one day loaded only 700 tons, he said.

They know our plans and limitations. If I were a Russian I would wait, calmly perfecting my instruments and techniques, then send up my first man just a few months before the date the Americans announced for their first flight."

We'll Back You —South Africa

SALISBURY (Reuters)—White leaders of Rhodesia Friday received South Africa's direct support for keeping power in their hands.

Eric Louw, South African external affairs Minister, voiced his support in Cape Town as Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky of the Rhodesian-Nyasaland federation faced a mounting crisis here.

Louw, speaking in Parliament, said South Africa and Northern and Southern Rhodesia must stand together "to preserve white civilization" in their countries.

Amid cheers from government supporters, Louw said the time might come when South Africa, the Portuguese territories and Rhodesia would have to stand together to maintain western civilization in Africa.

South Africa long has exerted a strong influence in white-dominated Southern Rhodesia. This influence undoubtedly would grow more powerful if Welensky carries out a veiled threat to seek independence from Britain.

Mother's Scream Speeds Judge

VANCOUVER (CP)—A mother screamed at Mr. Justice A. M. Manson when he sentenced her son in assize court Friday to 15 years in prison on a charge of rape.

It was the judge's final appearance in court before his enforced retirement.

He had just sentenced Kenneth Rudolph Muggill, 20, of Vancouver, convicted of raping a 19-year-old girl on Nov. 11.

Muggill's mother screamed from the rear of the court.

"Oh, no, it's not right to sentence my son like that."

"You're . . ." screamed the woman before she could be taken from the courtroom by RCMP.

The justice also sentenced John Armand Watt, 32, of Vancouver, to 25 years in prison on a separate charge of raping a 28-year-old mother of three last Dec. 11.

The sentences were followed by tribute from counsel to the judge for his long service on the bench.

Mother Picks Jail Over 'Poor Justice'

OTTAWA (CP)—Sgt. Thomas Lees, high sheriff of Dorset, England, may find his sister in an Ottawa jail when he pays a family visit in two months.

The sister, Mrs. D. J. Conway, intends to serve a jail sentence to protest a "poor sort of justice"—conviction for speeding last December.

She pleaded guilty in court to travelling 46 miles an hour. Then the mother of eight and wife of a city paediatrician explained:

"My three-month-old child had just recovered from bronchitis and was getting some fresh air in the pram in the back yard. I was uptown picking up another child at the eye doctor's. A heavy rainstorm broke and I was rushing home to get the baby inside before the pram was engulfed."

Sorry, the court ruled, but since Mrs. Conway had pleaded guilty, there was no alternative but to assess a $22 fine or four days in jail.

"I shall not finance or condone what I think is a poor sort of justice. I shall go to jail," Mrs. Conway said Friday.

She added: "It should be interesting. When I expect to begin my jail term my mother is coming from England to visit us."

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

LISTEN carefully as you unfold your newspaper, and if you have sharp ears, you may pick up a thin wail of pain.

It is the distress cry of a word being twisted out of its proper meaning.

Newspapermen aren't guilty of deliberate cruelty to words, but haste compels them to sling the little fellows around by the scruff of the neck. Sometimes a word falls and fractures a syllable, or gets permanently crippled by rough handling.

A reader phoned yesterday to lodge a complaint about two words that often are mistreated: "imply" and "infer."

"When I was at school at Galway in Ireland, my Latin master camed me for misusing those words," he said. "ImPLY means to insinuate or hint. InFER means to draw a meaning from what someone else says."

"But the newspapers often use these two words interchangeably. Whenever I see them wrongly used, I can feel those welts from the caning the Latin master gave me. He was fastidious about the proper use of English words."

"I'll do what I can to ease the suffering of those words, and make you feel better," I assured him.

Then I looked up the words in the Concise Oxford, and got a nasty surprise.

"Infer" was defined as follows: "Deduce, conclude... imply."

So I telephoned the reader again "Sorry," I said. "It seems that your word has infiltrated the dictionary. You know how it is. If a sufficient number of ignorant people keep making the same mistake, it ceases to be a mistake and becomes correct usage. Too bad."

"It wasn't in the dictionary I looked up," he said.

"It's in this one, though. But the battle isn't lost. We can get together and drum it out of the dictionary again. The word has got inside the stockade, but it hasn't necessarily conquered the fort."

"I hope not, because those two words have entirely separate meanings," he said.

Doctors Realize Wonder Drugs Hide 'Killers'

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, MD.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I hear now and then of new and improved wonder drugs on the commercial scene. While these drugs are making the grade, some writers are giving warnings on the too-promiscuous use of these compounds."

"I'm wondering whether the medical societies are genuinely concerned with this problem or is it left to the discretion of the individual practitioner?"—J.K."

Yes, the medical societies are vitally concerned. In past decades and centuries we have had truly marvelous discoveries, such as aspirin, ether, digitalis, morphine. Each of these has been of inestimable value to mankind. However, each has its dangers, or "side effects," as we call them now. Each can, in certain circumstances, kill.

AUCH OTHERS

Today the "wonder drugs" are for the most part antibiotics and steroid hormones, plus such others as polio vaccine, tranquilizers, psychic energizers, anti-coagulants, pinworm and fungus medications, etc.

All have their possible dangers along with their obvious benefits. Unless you believe in fairy tales, you don't fool yourself by believing that any great invention is all good or all bad. Consider penicillin, automobiles, airplanes, atomic fission, wheels, iron, money, automation, electricity.

DANGERS, TOO

At conferences, national, state and local medical societies, and at specialty meetings, the dangers as well as the benefits of new drugs are always discussed. These drugs are the tools of therapy, the basic materials of medicine. Of course we study them!

Nor is that all. When a new drug is discovered in the laboratories, the next step is experimentation with animals. If it still looks promising, cautious use with patients is begun. It is often a matter of years before any public announcement is made.

EXPANDED USE

Then, if there is still promise and lack of harmful effects, there follows an expanded use by perhaps several hundred or more specialists.

There are doctors who are reluctant to prescribe new drugs except with extreme caution, until they have been in general use for a year or two or more. These doctors aren't fuddy-duddies. They are conscientious. They have my blessing and my respect.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Would drinking alcoholic beverages harm a person who has been hospitalized for mental illness and still gets depressed?"—J. M. and A. A."

Such a person decidedly should not indulge in alcohol.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Would you clarify some questions about German measles in pregnant women? When the mother has been exposed, then has received gamma globulin shots, will the baby be affected even though the mother does not break out with the measles?"—Mrs. J. S."

The danger from German measles is in the first three months of pregnancy, but if the disease is ward off by gamma globulin after exposure, there is little likelihood that the baby will be affected.

John D Stands Firm on Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincially levied income taxes, starting next year, appeared inevitable as the Dominion-provincial tax conference ended Friday.

However, Premier Bennett said Thursday he will reject any such tax for B.C.

In two days of closed-door talks with the 10 provincial premiers, Prime Minister Diefenbaker didn't budge from his sweeping new fiscal proposal which will push the provinces into levying a share of personal and corporate income taxes.

NO CHANGES

Asked if he had altered terms of the proposal he put forward Thursday, Mr. Diefenbaker said flatly: "The proposal is as presented."

Finance Minister Fleming said the federal government would examine provincial requests for improved financial terms.

NOT ASSURED

But he replied "no" when asked whether they were given assurances that Ottawa would consider changes in the terms of its proposal.

Mr. Fleming said the proposal is "so good and so sound" that it would commend itself to a majority of the provinces.

EXPECTED MORE

"I don't expect the provinces to express their enthusiasm right away," he said. "Didn't they all come here in the hope they were going to get more money?"

Saskatchewan Premier T. C. Douglas said the proposals were "Orwellian, because they make all the provinces equal, but some are more equal than others."

AVERAGIZATION

Using the national average instead of the average of the two wealthiest provinces in calculating equalization payments, he said, meant "equalization has become averagization."

However, Premier Roblin of Manitoba said his province would be better off in the long run than under the current part.

RESPONSIBILITY

Premier Manning of Alberta expressed approval of the principle that governments should take responsibility for levying the tax money that they spend.

The federal proposal won't require provincial agreement to be implemented.

John D Praised By B.C. Loggers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Proposals by Prime Minister Diefenbaker to lessen tax burdens on British Columbia and Ontario's forest industries have met with approval here.

J. R. Nicholson, president of Forest Industries Council of B.C., said Friday the prime minister's call for provincial and federal governments to get together with a view to making joint tax concessions fits in exactly with proposals contained in council briefs to the federal government.

COASTAL OPERATORS

The council represents the majority of large coastal forest product operators.

Mr. Nicholson said the council has asked for removal of inequities between logging taxes in B.C. and Ontario, and consideration of a general easing of tax burdens borne by the industry in both provinces.

"Taxes in B.C. are two to three per cent higher than Ontario's," said Mr. Nicholson.

The prime minister told the Dominion-provincial fiscal conference in Ottawa that the current rates of federal income and provincial logging

Ojibway's Creation

Third Baking Made Real Man

TORONTO (CP) — The Adam and Eve story is not for the Ojibways. As Lorenzo Chief Big Canoe of Georgina Island's Indian band told it at a Brotherhood Week meeting, the creation happened this way:

First Humans?

Skull of earliest "human" known to science is shown by British anthropologist Dr. L. S. B. Leakey, who found bones of child and man in Tanganyika, where he estimates they lived more than 600,000 years ago. Skull and jawbone of child, he says, indicate the child was murdered at age of 11. Moonlighting Publicity Puts Firemen on Carpet

WINNIPEG (CP) — Fire Chief Dave Dunett said Friday two city firemen working in off-duty hours as ambulance drivers will "be called on the carpet" to explain why they allowed their "moonlighting" to be publicized. Firemen Doug Slack and Ernest Neubare had their photographs published in a newspaper after a 334-mile wild goose chase as ambulance drivers.

They identified themselves to reporters as Don Stark and Ernie Schmidt. Chief Dunett said he would question them about false names.

"I think it showed poor taste on their part to even think of being photographed in view of (union) trouble we have been having over this moonlighting issue," he said.

'Save Us or Break Us' Role for UN Students

Some of the students participating yesterday and today in a make-believe, miniature UN organization at Victoria High School may one day represent Canada in the real thing.

Delegates represented 99 nations as the first session was called to order yesterday afternoon.

In a nearby gymnasium an intramural badminton session and a basketball game were in progress. Outside, athletes were getting in shape for track events.

But in a comparatively quiet school auditorium sat more than a 100 student delegates. Today's sessions start at 9:15 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The Great Creator one day cast an image out of clay in his likeness and had it baked in the sun. He found it half-baked. He found it half-baked. "Let's call it white and send it north," make me another," the Creator said.

The next was over-baked and prompted the Creator to call it black, send it south and ask for a new try.

Carnival Workers' Children

'Giveaway' Family All Dead

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Police believe four missing children of an itinerant carnival couple met death in much the same fashion as did their sister, Carol Ann Dudley, 7.

Carol Ann's blanket-covered body was found two weeks ago in woods just off a heavily travelled highway near Lawrenceville, Va.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dudley, are being held on charges of neglect leading to her death of malnutrition and exposure.

The Dudleys told police they gave four other children to a fellow carnival worker three years ago because they could not care for them.

Kenneth Dudley, 47, is in state prison here after an attempted suicide in jail. His wife Irene, 44, is in jail, and a young child with them at the time of their arrest is in the care of a welfare department.

1814 Hostility Held Against Indians

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Alabama's Creek Indians served notice yesterday they want somebody to pay them the $2 an acre that Andrew Jackson promised them for their land in 1814.

The U.S. government claims the Alabama Indians were hostile at the time and should not be paid.

No Bottomless Pit

THE new federal proposals for tax-sharing with the provinces should neither be accepted nor rejected before serious thought is given to one of Canada's most vexing financial problems.

However, Mr. Diefenbaker's plan that the provinces should be allowed to set their own rates of income and corporation taxes, creates public suspicion and doubt lest this would result in tax-filing complications and more bureaucrats to look after them.

Mr. Diefenbaker has offered to make the collections for each of the provinces, and this might allay some of the fears, although chartered accountants say that the present situation in Ontario—which province has its own corporation tax—is a nightmare for those involved.

The average taxpayer's outlook is that when most of the provinces relinquished their separate tax rights in 1943 it was a forward step and that any change to the old order would be retrogressive.

On the other hand it is not difficult to understand why the federal government should seek a move that would place the tax requirements of the provinces on their own shoulders. Last year some provinces, especially Ontario, made exorbitant demands of Ottawa in their new tax rental suggestions. To a degree therefore there can be justification for a federal attitude which says, "Well if you want that sort of money, then you must raise it in your own province."

Premier Bennett, whose immediate reaction was to reject the proposals, says they would cost B.C. $4,500,000 a year, chiefly because of the way in which the new equalization formula for the less wealthy provinces would be operated.

It is possible that Mr. Bennett is right in objecting to the proposal that would not only call upon B.C. to subsidize some other provinces but would also require to offset half the revenue it obtains from its natural resources as a calculation of its total wealth. This in the case of B.C. could amount to a double penalty.

The one good thing that may eventuate from the discussion is a growing awareness of the fact that there is no bottomless pit from which funds can be drawn at will for either federal or provincial use. The pit is only as deep as the taxpayer's pocket.

Security First

THERE is little doubt that it fell to the Prime Minister on his recent visit to Washington to personally assure President Kennedy that there would be no Canadian abandonment of any joint defensive agreement involving either NATO or NORAD.

Mr. Diefenbaker's obligation in this regard was brought about by the loud and continuing demands by both the Liberal and CCF opposition parties that Canada reduce her military support in both these defence bodies, presumably to prove to the world at large and her citizens in particular that Canada still remains a sovereign nation.

Such irresponsible and unrealistic policies have unquestionably raised among our American allies serious doubts as to whether Canada can be depended upon to uphold her share of the bargain.

The threat to Canada's independence through such an alliance is completely fallacious. In fact it may be said that without such an alliance our sovereignty would indeed be in peril.

Such is the view of Great Britain—and there exists nowhere a country more jealous of its sovereignty.

Easily the Best

THE Esquimalt-Saanich parliamentary seat is obviously an attractive one. It is a prestige riding, of course. It was held so long by General Peckies for the Conservatives that an upset would give a filip to any other party which managed to capture it. This is one of the reasons behind the bold bids for candidate nomination.

The latest news is that another mainland competitor will enter the lists, or at least try to. Reeve George Hahn of Surrey has announced his intention of seeking the Social Credit nomination, the only one needed to complete the party slates. He has to overcome the hurdle of other bidders, however—former speaker Mr. Tom Irwin, until recently also a mainland, and local businessman Mr. Clarence Ellis.

Outside invaders of federal ridings are not usually too greatly welcomed by local party groups, who naturally think the prize should be theirs for the asking. Undoubtedly this was one of the handicaps that faced Mr. Gowan Guest when he unsuccessfully sought the Conservative nomination.

One intriguing aspect of Mr. Hahn's intervention is that were he able to secure the Social Credit nomination this would pit two municipal reeves against each other. Reeve Chatterton of Saanich is the local reeve, however, whereas Mr. Hahn would be a stranger to the nuances of this area despite his general municipal experience.

No matter who wins the Social Credit nomination Reeve Chatterton will be by far the best informed, the more knowledgeable of all the candidates seeking the Esquimalt-Saanich seat. His dynamic approach to present problems in that area coming under his municipal direction is well established, and his dedication to public affairs is matched only by his capabilities.

The voters are not likely to overlook this when the byelection is called, probably in a couple of months. Reeve Chatterton is a familiar and experienced champion of local interests and thus best able to represent this constituency.

Interpreting the News

About-Face on Laos

By PHIL NEWSOM, UPI Foreign News Analyst

UNITED States policy toward the little southeast Asia kingdom of Laos has undergone an abrupt change of course.

From all-out support of the rightist Laotian Pathet Lao, this week it suddenly endorsed a proposal for a neutral Laos whose government, by tacit understanding, would include Communist representatives.

By making the switch, the Kennedy administration turned its back on the course which had been followed by President Eisenhower and his secretary of state, Christian Herter, and endorsed the view which had been held all along by Great Britain and France.

No announcement accompanied the U.S. about-face.

It simply came with United States endorsement of a proposal by Laotian King Savang Vatthana for a neutral Laos protected against outside intervention by a watch-dog commission of three neutral nations—Cambodia, Malaysia and Burma.

While the civil war between pro and anti-Communist forces in Laos has gone on intermittently since the Geneva Conference of 1954, the current crisis dates from Aug. 9, 1960, when an army coup led by Capt. Kong Le toppled a pro-Western government and established an avowedly neutral government headed by Prince Souvanna Phouma.

U.S. action was immediate and unfriendly.

It opposed Souvanna Phouma's negotiations to bring the Pathet Lao into his government.

And when Prince Bourin Oum, with Phoumi Nosavan's help, proclaimed himself head of a new Laotian government, he quickly won U.S. recognition and military aid.

Strongly critical of the U.S. action were both Britain and France who saw in it a return to the late John Foster Dulles' pronouncement that "neutrality is immoral" and who believed it served only to drive Souvanna Phouma into Communist arms.

In the midst of political stalemate, the military situation worsened. Russia began airlifting arms to the Communist Pathet Lao, and increasingly bitter negotiations between Washington and Moscow heightened the prospect that a civil war in obscure Laos could be the fuse to touch off a world war.

That was the situation as recently as two weeks ago. In six years, the United States poured upward of $250 million into Laos with only one purpose in mind—to defeat the Pathet Lao.

Strategically, Laos protects the flank of Thailand and South Vietnam. But its slow and sleepy people are not of the tough stuff to make strong allies and it appears now the best the U.S. can hope for is a compromise.

One-Upmanship

The Good Fight

By CASSANDRA, from London

IN a world that sometimes seems to be based on the philosophies of "What's in it for me?" and "I'm all right, Jack," and in a society often obsessed with spivery, there was a brave letter from a fighting parson that The Times published which I feel should be known to other than Top People.

Recently in the Law Courts there was a case in which it was held that it was not unreasonable for a husband to refuse to have a second child on the grounds of the excessive expense in rearing it. The husband's salary was £3,000 a year.

The judge agreed with his views. Be that as it may. But this prompted a parson—his name is the Rev. W. A. Kneebone of Launceston, Cornwall—to take the opposite point of view. He has revealed, quite uncomplainingly, the details of his budget and how he is managing to raise two children on a stipend of £650 a year with two grants of £100 per child from relatives and a bursary of £75 a year.

The total income for the whole family is £1,270 per annum. The school fees amount to £750 a year.

Clothing and travelling are extra. "My wife," says Mr. Kneebone, "has worked at a maternity hospital since my boy went to his preparatory school at seven and a half years of age... we try to keep up with modern knowledge and interests, we enjoy the moors and coasts, and have a week or two on holiday each year. We have many friends and enjoy their company. Our lives are by no means stunted or narrow."

Surely this is the Good Fight. The sacrifice of parents for their children, the urge to give them what they think is the best start in life, the uncomplaining struggle against poverty and the cheerfulness withal, is, I feel, a bit of a superb piece of disinterested one-upmanship.

It is relevant that State education costs the taxpayer £100 a year per child. The legislators and their servants the tax-gatherers might well ponder over some remission towards such people as Mr. Kneebone; that is when they have finished making it easy for the capital-gains boys who can make a packet overnight with a telephone call to a stockbroker.

The Talking Marathon to put the case of multilateral disarmament as opposed to the anti-Gaitskill Nuclear Disarmers' movement opened in a drizzle of enthusiasm at the Central Hall, Westminster. The idea is that a team of Labor MPs talk continuously for five and a half hours every night for five nights in succession.

I suggest that Mr. Harold Lever, MP, who on Monday night in the Commons spoke for two hours and two minutes might be co-opted as a non-stop speaker of no mean proportions. He talked on the White Fish and Herring Industries Bill and dealt with every filibustering subject from the question of catching coelacanths to the conversion of the Queen Mary into a trawler, to the suspension of his trousers with which he was having great difficulty.

Estimates of the first night audience on Monday at the Central Hall varied from 25 to 35—the larger figure included five members of the Press and two newsreel cameramen.

The multilateral case is a good one and it deserves to be known.

It is a pity that it is being buried alive by such an amateur conception of propaganda as victory through boredom. The great emotional marches of the Nuclear Disarmers, the Pied Piper stunts, complete with the headline-catching eccentricities of people like Earl Russell, have nothing to fear from a talking marathon, which shrieks of the yawn.

Reports from Ottawa

AFTER the favorable impression the Liberals created with wide-open resolutions committee sessions at their national rally last month, the Conservatives have been sweating out the same problem for the Tory get-together to be held here next month.

Their decision is "No." I can't say that I much blame them. For while the impression was good when the Liberals opened their resolutions committee sessions to press and public, the results were such that even Grits may not try it in exactly the same way again.

The Liberals found that the younger and more radical of their members pushed and at times carried proposals that were embarrassing to the party brass and decidedly unattractive to middle-of-the-road Liberals. Eventually the brass had to marshal its manly power to mow the greener grass lest it commit the party to such positions as working actively for Red China's admission to the United Nations—a resolution of doubtful value for enticing Quebec to vote solidly Grit next time.

The Tory resolutions committee met all day recently in preparation for the annual Progressive Conservative Association meeting of some 2,000 delegates and alternates here March 16, 17 and 18. In effect it vetoed anything like the Liberals' innovation of "open policies" openly arrived at.

It is, however, trying to convey the impression that it is pretty well matching what the Liberals did.

The resolutions committee decided that its "sittings" which deal with discussion of policy and principles (will) be open sittings, and those devoted exclusively to drafting of resolutions covering policy and principles already approved (will) be executive (i.e., closed) sessions.

But it would seem impossible for the committee to rise above banality on policy and principles unless it had a resolution before it to approve, amend or reject.

Just what, I asked Conservative national director Allister Grosart, will be open?

"The discussion of the report of the resolutions committee to the general meeting will be open," he said. "So will the seminar with the cabinet ministers."

It's not hard to understand why the Tories are uncomfortable about this matter of resolutions. Grosart put his finger on it when he commented, somewhat wryly, that "a party in office doesn't have resolutions." What he meant is that, except for those innocuous ones expressing confidence in the government and in the leadership of the prime minister there aren't many that a Tory convention can pass that would not reflect on the government for doing or not doing whatever might be the subject of the particular resolution.

Yet the Tory resolutions committee has received 140 resolutions, and expects a total of 200.

The main task of the resolutions committee will thus be to frown, euphemize, water down, emasculate and suppress those that don't portray the Diefenbaker government as the best of all possible governments in the best of all possible Canadas.

This can scarcely be done in public.

THOUGH there were plenty of empty seats in the bus, a lady of about my own age came and plumped herself down beside me.

"Pah!" she said. "It's a pleasure to sit down beside somebody of my own generation."

"Thank you ma'am," said I. "I'm on my way home after baby sitting for my grandchildren," she said, arranging herself for a little comfortable conversation. "And I tell you the way these young people live nowadays, it's more like camping out than housekeeping."

"Well, now," I said, for I am always interested in camping. "These little ranch-style bungalows are more like tents than homes," said my new confidante. "Well, maybe not tents. But like happy-go-lucky summer cabins, say. Everything hung handy on nails. And food? Nobody cooks any more. They even feed the babies out of cans. There's no feeling of that solemn responsibility that used to fill the home in the old housekeeping days. It's all fun. It's just a camping trip."

"Did you find your grandchildren well?" I enquired politely.

"Aw, the darlings!" said my tete a tete, and she groped in her handbag and brought out the snapshots.

Heads in the Sand

(From The Ottawa Journal)

WITH some justification claims have been made that the government's defence policy has not been clear. It is not possible in this era of change in weapons to spell out planning as clearly as in the days when order could be restored by sending a cruiser. But Defence Minister Harkness at least assists clarity by spelling out the defence problem as he sees it.

His views, stated in a recent speech, are: Canada cannot build a massive intercontinental missile force and cannot afford a fleet of nuclear submarines or endless numbers of interceptor aircraft but she can make a "meaningful" contribution to the large force of ships, aircraft, missiles and ground forces contributed by all the 15 nations in NATO.

The vulnerability of the North American continent to attack has increased and the conclusion of statesmen and military men is that the only defence in the nuclear age is the knowledge of nuclear retaliation if attack is launched. This means the free world has a vital interest in the strength of the United States, the main force if retaliation is required.

It is "nonsense," in the minister's view, to think Canada can remain neutral and untouched in another war. Whether an ally of neutral she would be in the nuclear firing line in a war between Russia and the United States.

Proposals that Canada largely withdraw from the active air defence of the continent left the question of whether U.S. air bases in Canada would take the place of Canadian squadrons: U.S. machines so based would be more effective with nuclear weapons.

Whatever may be the arguments about the proper tools and methods of defence, it is hard to dispute Mr. Harkness' conclusion: "We Canadians by geography, by culture, by tradition and by our very sense of freedom are firmly committed to a contribution to the defence of the democratic world. It seems to me that there is very little point in hiding our heads in the sand and expecting someone else to do our job for us."

Higher Criticism

Life Has Its Hazards

By SHAUN HERON

LIFE has—at least—two serious hazards in Canada.

The first is to be a performer before the public, particularly on television. The second is to be a viewer of performers before the public.

In a firmly objective piece like this it is scarcely necessary for me to say that I am a devotee of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and believe it to be one of the most powerful creative forces in the nation's life. Perhaps it is almost the most naggingly undervalued institution in the nation's history: next to Parliament, maybe.

This, however, does not protect those who are public performers—or those who watch them—from the natural hazards to which the observers and the observed voluntarily expose themselves.

There is nothing even a public relations executive archangel can do for a man if the viewer is spontaneously certain that his hair is parted on the wrong side, or that his aura is unsympathetic. There are laws in this matter which like Mr. T. S. Eliot's theory of poetry are governed by the reason beyond reason. It is inaccessible. And as the great military theorist of Liechtenstein, Field-Marshal Schmarz-leepin, wrote in his classic "The Ultimate Manoeuvre": "If the enemy cannot reach you he cannot touch you."

Mr. Harry Belafonte, a man of considerable distinction as an entertainer, with a gift of some individual quality, came about of the reason beyond reason when he was interviewed recently on "Close-Up" by Diana Maddox, an actress who is very daring to venture beyond the repetition of other men's lines into the treacherous invention of her own.

Mr. Belafonte as a singer has a familiar image. If by chance or taste one cares neither for his singing nor his songs, one may nonetheless pay tribute to his professional competence. But as a public philosopher Mr. Belafonte has no professional competence and no amount of reflective plucking at the chin, thoughtful creaking of the head, meditative peering at the ceiling, broody staring at the floor, full-flared eye rollings, corner-eye peeking or byzantine flouncing with the fingers can make him anything but a bore in every cliché of the more popular vocabulary of sociology, psychology and pseudo-political science.

Nonetheless, one simply says, "It's a pity he talked: he's a nice young man." Mr. Belafonte's popular assets outweigh his liabilities as a professional Negro with a safe career, a well-earned and growing fortune and a cause.

Diana Maddox is less securely endowed. Miss Maddox's few reserves of competence or reputation as an actress do not outweigh the pecking eagerness of her startling presence. That little closed fist, punching—but punching is too strong a word, the right word is pomeling; in the vaporous female of the sentimental novel sense, it has just the right weight—pomeling home the question that is really a challenge to agree with her intense and dogmatic interrogation, cools, if it doesn't chill the marrow fat.

No interviewer on television can succeed from anybody's point of view, who says with a tightly clenched little fist and a tightly drawn little mouth "Don't you agree that?" or "Don't you think?" almost every time she speaks. And that is it: Miss Maddox has an insistent personality.

But again: there is Nathan Cohen. One must be very careful when listening to Toronto's intelligentsia (shall I call it?) reacting to Mr. Cohen on television. At the heart of the general reaction there lies all unconcealed the well filled form of naked envy, a little blade who like most women can scarcely afford to be unconcealed. Mr. Cohen is too successful and the reason beyond reason slyly takes this into account when judging his performances.

Mr. Cohen wore a cane during his later interviews on the series Encounter. "It is better than his baroque gestures," said the intelligentsia in a state of extreme adrenergic.

But the grazers in the common herd were not fundamentally different. I have heard the true story of why Mr. Cohen took to leaning on this cane while he talked with his guests and pledged not to tell, but he was judged by quite titivating standards: the dimensions of his "pudgy" fingers would round the head of the cane; the limitations imposed by the cane on his familiar gestures; the humped-up-look it gave him, "like Buddha," and those who so responded to the cane and Mr. Cohen damned every interview in which he wore it, without comment on anything but the cane.

There is a Toronto program that was once called Tabloid and is now "701" from which all Miss Maddox's insistent intensity is absent. A jolly, mildly whimsical, resolutely relaxed atmosphere is the program's stock-in-trade.

Presumably to preserve this air of relaxation, coy opening jokes and jolly ribbing among the regulars has a place in most performances and now and then—perhaps on reflection both now and then—the program seems to run out of people and falls back on the four regulars and their relaxed, whimsical, inconsequential small talk or maybe a game of ping-pong, on camera.

Relaxed or insistent, it makes no difference: higher reason passes judgment and my samplings record the verdict: "Who in Sheol gave them the idea their small talk or their ping-pong is of any public interest?"

The one thing that seems certain about our reactions to those who want us to see them is that where two or three are gathered together before the little screen, the performer is a two-to-one loser. The reason is the invisible judge.

Garden Notes

Don't Be a Fusspot

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

With the planting season upon us, one of the most important lessons the novice gardener must learn is not to fuss unduly over newly planted perennials, shrubs, trees or lawns. All they need in their early stages is to be treated to a little wholesome neglect.

If the planting site has been prepared properly and the plant or shrub put in correctly, there is very little more you can do to help it along until it has settled down in its new environment. In fact, considerable damage can be done by trying to push the plant along.

The time to supply food for the plant, the time to ensure against dryness at the roots, the time to amend the soil texture is before planting, not after. The newly planted lawn, whether from sod or seed, will prosper best if its care is limited to careful and frequent mowing during its first season, plus water when it is really needed. The use of weedkillers and fertilizers will hinder rather than help the young grasses in their effort to become established. There shouldn't be any need for either 2-4-D or fertilizer if the site was prepared with the proper care.

Any perennial plant, including trees and lawn grasses, needs time to adjust itself before it can forge ahead. It must develop its root system before it can put on much topgrowth, so fertilizers are more likely to be a hindrance than a help in the early stages since they tend to foster the growth of foliage at the expense of root formation — topgrowth which cannot be supported by inadequate roots.

The newly planted tree or shrub should have a whole year of growth before any feeding at all is needed. Don't expect very much in the way of above-ground performance during this first year — the important growth is going on out of sight, below the soil surface.

Every plant suffers some injury and shock when it is moved or transplanted, no matter how carefully the job is done. Tiny, almost invisible root hairs are torn and broken and, as these are the organs through which the plant must take its food and water, they must be restored before new growth can take place. In the meantime, the plant lives on the nutrients stored in its own tissues, like a hibernating bear living on its own fat.

Until the plant grows itself a new set of feeding root hairs — and too much water or fertilizer can hinder this process — the amount of topgrowth which can be sustained is severely limited. This is why shrubs and trees are pruned hard during transplanting to reduce the demands on the root system.

This is why so many evergreen trees and shrubs shed some of their foliage when transplanted. Far from being abnormal or bad, this leaf-shedding is only the plant's way of balancing its budget — of adjusting its expenditure to its income.

The time to consider a feeding program for your new plants is after topgrowth starts again. Until strong, vigorous growth is resumed, all they need is firm anchorage, protection against extremes of wetness or dryness and freedom from the nagging attentions of their owners.

Envoy to Africa

Kennedy's Brick-Dropper

G. MENNEN WILLIAMS
... puts foot in it

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanganyika (UPI) — U.S. assistant secretary of state G. Mennen Williams arrived here last night under new criticism as President Kennedy's "personal brick-dropper in Africa" for alleged anti-British remarks.

Already under fire in Nairobi, Kenya, for commenting that the United States believes in "Africa for the Africans," Williams said upon his arrival that he is looking forward to meeting this colony's "governor-general."

Tanganyika has no such official, but it does have a governor, Sir Richard Turnbull.

In London, Daily Mail columnist John Jelley said Williams is a "brick dropper" and quoted press reports that the former Michigan governor had "snubbed" white officials in Nairobi "so he could talk privately with African leaders."

The British press in general expressed half-amused, half-concerned reaction to Williams' tour of Africa. The Times of London said Kennedy made a "gamble" in appointing Williams to head the state department's new African affairs division and added:

"The beginning, it is feared, has not been particularly auspicious."

But Williams called these reports "balderdash." He said one of his longest conversations was with a former minister for information in Nairobi who is a "British African."

"If any one felt snubbed," he said, "I regret it. But no snub was intended."

Before leaving Uganda, Williams told a press conference that Africans must be kept free from new tyranny "worse than they suffered before." But he quickly "withdrew" that phrase and said he wasn't referring to the British.

The United States wants strong, stable and independent governments in Africa to avoid creation of a vacuum where "another kind of tyranny can enter."

Asked to explain, he said: "Well, perhaps worse than they suffered before. But I withdraw that phrase. I don't mean that the British are tyrannical." In Kenya, where he stopped before reaching Uganda, Williams made his "Africa for the Africans" remark. But he later clarified it, saying he meant "Africa for both white and black Africans."

New Zealand Health

Aged Fed, Housed

Public Help Eye-Opener

By KEN MacTAGGART
(Third of a Series)

WELLINGTON, N.Z. — In this country adoption of a national health scheme has not resulted in the collapse of public interest or active co-operation in voluntary health welfare activities.

A Canadian doctor told me, after visiting an old people's home: "I've never seen anything like it in my life; it would open eyes at home in Canada."

He spoke of only one activity that occupies countless New Zealanders in this welfare state.

Most remarkable is the infant care program, linked with mother care.

Expectant mothers need only to go to a doctor to receive prenatal examinations and attention, free hospitalization in one of 103 maternity hospitals, and post-natal care. But by that time the Plunket Society will be on the scene — a voluntary organization linking doctors, public and nurses.

It raises its own funds publicly, maintains 250 specialist infant care nurses (who supervise the health of more than 90 per cent of New Zealand's youngsters), operate six infant hospitals which are teaching centres for nurses and functions through 634 branches and sub-branches with 150 clinics and hospitals.

The doctor-public relationship in this welfare state is intriguing.

Much of the success of welfare projects depends on this unofficial, non-governmental factor.

As an example, doctors are paramount in the old people's homes plan.

It was recognized that old age pensions do not meet aged persons' needs and the home plan began.

Doctors were leaders in recognizing the need, knowing that it was psychological as well as physical.

Today public organizations also meet these needs.

The Masonic order has built a beautiful apartment type residential community, where old people, married or single, live. Fitted into the scheme is a small hospital.

Of the country's 75 general hospitals, eight are "old people's hospitals."

Five days a week women volunteers collect from their local hospital thermo-kits containing hot meals planned by dietitians. The meals are taken by car to old people who live alone.

To avoid any inference of charity, meals cost about 19 cents, but if the money isn't available any time the meal is left and a vague assurance given that "I'll pick it up some other time."

A meal is not just rushed in and left. The visitor invariably leaves a magazine or book or pack of cigarettes.

And a laundry service is provided for a penny.

I watched one of these services at work just before noon at Auckland's 600-bed public hospital.

A line of cars filed slowly past the hospital's kitchen outlet as the thermo-kits came down the line. The meal provided soup, roast beef, vegetables, pudding and tea.

"Must be quite an extra burden for the hospital," I said to medical superintendent John Goodfellow.

"Burden?" he echoed, agitated. "Good gracious, man, this is keeping people out of hospital! Despondency drives more old people into hospital than illness. Despondency and neglect."

Dr. J. L. Newman, medical superintendent of Green Lane Hospital in Auckland, the country's leading cardiological centre.

A specialist in geriatric problems, Dr. Newman stresses old people's homes must not become "geriatric backwaters," so he enlists public co-operation in visiting schemes.

Another plan is the Red Cross "Meals on Wheels" project.

Hollywood Today

Another Star Takes Leave Of Jinxed Movie

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Rosalind Russell's "Five Finger Exercise" movie is certainly jinxed in the leading-man department. Originally Sir Alec Guinness was to have co-starred, then Laurence Harvey. But Larry now has bowed out. He's too busy with "A Walk on the Wild Side" — his last commitment for Columbia. Then he goes to Japan for his Hal Wallis film, then to London for the postponed play, "Loser Wins," with Claire Bloom.

Tab Hunter paid a sum in the sixties-thousands for his new two-bedroom home. But he didn't mind — he was so glad to get out away from the neighbor who caused him so much trouble with his dog Fritz.

John Forsythe, the "Bachelor Father," used the money for his live segments in Europe to buy furniture in England and paintings in Paris. John is sailing along in his fourth TV season. He owns part of the show, which makes life so beautiful!

Claire, incidentally, is delighted that her play in London has been postponed, because husband Rod Taylor could not go with her at this time. And they have yet to be parted since their marriage two years ago.

Piper Laurie, who left Hollywood to learn her trade as an actress in New York, plays a mixed-up beatnik in Robert Rossen's new movie, "The Hustler," and Paul Newman will have to learn to play pool for the same picture, to be filmed entirely in New York. With Jackie Gleason, of course, and Jackie is really trying to diet for this movie.

It will be Kirk Douglas and Dean Martin for "Bent's Port" at Columbia. No other two actors in Hollywood are more in demand than this pair.

Marlon Brando, on his time spent in Tahiti — "I've never felt so free and happy. There are no gossip columnists there."

Kim Novak should get to work. The beautiful star has not faced a camera for almost a year. That's too long for Kim to remain off the screen. When Harry Cohn, her discoverer, was alive, he kept Kim more active.

Reading Closed Book

LOS ANGELES—Dr. Frank C. Baxter, English professor and TV personality, says Americans seem to be coming anti-book readers.

"One out of every three college graduates did not read a book in 1958," said Baxter. "Some of them got to just under the wire with 'Lolita' or 'Erle Stanley Gardner'."

One in every two Americans doesn't read a book a year, he said.

He said the best preparation for what may lie ahead is "A full mind, a broad mind and a ready wit."

OTTAWA—Members of the Canadian-United States Inter-parliamentary group talked right up to their deadline and had to depart for Quebec without drafting a formal communiqué. Co-chairman Senator George Aiken of Vermont said "we just couldn't stop talking."

OTTAWA—Ottawa Humane Society has accused dog catcher Robert Amyot of using a female poodle to lure stray dogs into his net. Amyot gets $4 for each stray he catches.

OTTAWA—Finance Minister Donald Fleming has agreed to visit Victoria next month to discuss financing of the Columbia River development, says British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

KNOXVILLE, Iowa—A shortage of $500,000 was found in the Community National Bank and Trust Co. and long-time bank president Eldon Job, 59, hanged himself on an attic stairway after leaving a note confessing the embezzlement. The shortage was the third reported in Iowa in six weeks.

VATICAN CITY—Vatican officials said Queen Elizabeth's planned visit to Pope John in May is certain to further improve relations between the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches.

TORONTO—Unemployed watchmaker Deane Bakoyi, 21, described by the judge as "a youth with a packrat mind," was sentenced to hang for the murder of his step-sister Eva Blumberger, 21, whose body was buried in a construction trench. Bakoyi replied: "I am not afraid to die."

Chatterton Under Fire For Playing Politics

Saanich Reeve George Chatterton came under fire in the legislature yesterday for "playing politics."

When Alan Macfarlane (I—Oak Bay) used Reeve Chatterton's quotes, reported in yesterday's Colonist as stating the proposed new school cost formula will be "almost calamitous" he met immediate objections from Waldo Skillings (SE—Victoria).

"That's politics . . . That's Chatterton," Mr. Skillings shouted across the floor.

Mr. Chatterton, a week ago, won the Conservative nomination to contest the Esquimalt-Saanich federal seat in a byelection.

Welfare Issue

Speaker Checks Bruch Heckling

Herbert Bruch, Esquimalt, was called to order by the speaker yesterday for heckling CCFer Randolph Harding's attack on government welfare policies in the legislature.

Mr. Bruch, the lanky Socred who is often said to have aspirations to a cabinet post or for the federal parliament, pattered continually as Mr. Harding pressed point after point.

But it was when Mr. Harding quoted some 17 organizations and individuals that had demanded welfare reform, that the Esquimalt member brought what looked like embarrassment to the faces of his colleagues.

"Their statements aren't responsible . . . Give us the facts," yelled Mr. Bruch. "Playing politics . . . They are playing politics." Mr. Bruch kept sniping across the floor as Mr. Harding continued to name organization after organization and their criticisms about the handling of social welfare problems in B.C.

"I must ask the honorable member of Esquimalt to stop his constant nattering from the floor."

American Destroyers Here for Weekend

Two American destroyers carrying a total of 28 officers and 310 men on a reserve training cruise from the Puget Sound area are visiting Esquimalt for the weekend. USS Watts and USS Walton arrived at 2 p.m. yesterday and are scheduled to sail at 8 a.m. Monday.

Cruel

Owners Leave Dogs

Cruel and callous dog owners are abandoning their pets to avoid paying for new licences, an SPCA official charged last night.

Norman Stephens, secretary-manager of the Victoria SPCA branch, said he expects about 100 additional dogs will be abandoned within the next six weeks.

"These people are callous—that's all they are, callous and cruel," he said. "They not only turn their backs on the street, but they take off their licence tags so the owners can't be traced."

"All they have to do is phone us at EV 3-0514 and we'll send a truck out to collect the dog and find it a home. Pet dogs abandoned like this don't know how to take care of themselves—they get run over or they are a nuisance to everyone."

Extended Runways Likely, Says Reeve

Reeve George Chatterton said last night he is "very optimistic" that runways at Patricia Bay airport will soon be lengthened to 6,000 feet from the present length of 5,000 feet.

He said this at a meeting of the Saanich Progressive Conservative Association in Sidney. Reeve Chatterton is the Conservative candidate in the forthcoming Esquimalt-Saanich federal byelection.

"I understand that TCA is having some difficulty in landing some aircraft at Patricia Bay in bad weather," he said. "I immediately got in touch with Ottawa and impressed them that I thought they should investigate the situation very thoroughly."

He was commenting on a suggestion that the naval reserve might vacate its headquarters, HMCS Malahat on Wharf Street in Victoria, and move into the Begg building at Yates and Quadra. The museum would then occupy HMCS Malahat.

"It is entirely up to the museum board where they locate but personally I am disappointed that they would use the Malahat," he said. "I know the building and it isn't any better than the one they have now."

"There is no parking at all down there for visitors and it seems to me quite a waste of public funds for the reserve division to locate in such a big place as the Begg building."

Esquimalt council has offered to donate a museum site on Rock Heights if money can be found for a building.

Build Civic Auditorium Or Run Park, B.C. Told

Provincial government was urged yesterday to either build a civic auditorium or take over the administration of Beacon Hill Park as a centennial project for Victoria next year.

The suggestion came from J. Donald Smith (SC—Victoria) who disagreed with a proposal voiced earlier this week by Waldo Skillings (SE—Victoria) that the government should provide a recreational centre for senior citizens as a centennial gift.

"I don't think we in Victoria are prepared to let the government off that easy in our centennial year celebrations," said Mr. Smith, speaking in the budget debate.

During his speech he also recommended that:

● Steps be taken to alleviate the parking situation around the legislative buildings.

● Oil companies should absorb the new gasoline tax without passing it on to the consumer.

● Service station operators should be protected from the "ruthless" manner in which they are treated by oil companies.

● A legislative committee should study unemployment.

● Lotteries should be established with profits going to welfare or the Community Chest.

● There should be a tax amnesty for older home improvements.

● The new mental hospital to be built to replace Colquhoun should include facilities for retarded children.

● The government set up a provincial transferable superannuation fund so that all people no matter where they work could contribute on a voluntary basis.

Mr. Smith said regardless of whether there was amalgamation or not the government should do something extra special for Victoria's centennial year. This would take the form of an indemnity to the city for not being paid taxes on government property.

TOURIST INDUSTRY

A new auditorium would be good for the whole lower Vancouver Island area and the tourist industry. If this was not acceptable then the government should consider taking over the administration of Beacon Hill Park from the city as a Capital Improvement District Commission project—a move that would help city ratepayers.

Mr. Smith added that he did feel that a recreational centre for the senior citizens was long overdue and should be provided by government and municipal funds.

The member suggested that $10,000 to $20,000 should be put into a parking fund to take care of civil servants' parking.

Present conditions were "deplorable," he stated and it was unfair to property owners in the legislative buildings area who found their streets crammed full of cars.

Mr. Smith suggested that existing parking accommodation be marked and that civil servants pay a nominal fee of $2 or $3 a month which would bring additional revenue into the parking fund of $2,000 a month.

HIGHLY CRITICAL

The member was highly critical of oil companies.

He agreed with opposition statements that the companies had a monopoly and suggested that a legislative committee should inquire into all practices of oil companies, especially their relations with service station operators.

The turnover of service station operators in Victoria was 20 to 25 per cent a year and many could be turned out of stations in 24 hours if they went against company policies.

Mr. Smith said he intended presenting a bill to the legislature to hear argument from all sides about the advisability of granting tax amnesty for older home improvements.

COMEDY SHOW: When Attorney General Robert Bonner was winding up the budget debate yesterday he became incensed at the sight of the CCF Dewdney member David Barrett, jollying in his seat, a wide grin crinkling across his face.

"I'd like to know why the honorable member finds this amusing," said Mr. Bonner a little harshly.

"I find it amusing because I disagree with you," retorted the CCFer.

"You can disagree with me," snapped an annoyed attorney general, "but you don't have to sit there giggling!"

WARNING SIGN: At a Victoria Chamber of Commerce public affairs group dinner the evening Bud Nimpson introduced guest speaker Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi.

As a highways minister, said Mr. Simpson, Mr. Gaglardi would go down in history as did the Caesars of Rome.

This year the minister should beware of the ideo of March . . . his departmental estimates should be coming up in the legislature about that time!

"I don't see any difficulty: It could be worked out, with us taking care of it and the expenses billed through to the CIDC."

"It would be a great saving to the people of Victoria," said Ald. M. H. Mooney, parks committee chairman, "and a service to the people of Greater Victoria, as long as it was maintained up to the present standard."

"But I can't see it happening. Can you?"

"Good for him!" said parks administrator W. H. Warren.

Wistful cheers, but cheers.

"If the CIDC wants it, fine!" said Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell, a CIDC member. "I've no objections, if they want to take it over."

Two elderly Victoria residents suffered minor injuries last night after their car, going east on Richardson at Foul Bay, collided with a car driven by Ronald Lewis, 343 Robertson, going north on Foul Bay, before going out of control, and crashing into the house.

William Stephenson, 2021 McNeill, owner of the house, said he heard the crash and then a loud thud.

"I thought at first the hot water tank had broken, the noise was so loud," he said.

Damage to the house was minor.

Keep Link With Past Public Urged

Victoria can ill afford to lose the B.C. Maritime Museum, a Chamber of Commerce spokesman said yesterday, but "this link with our nautical past" needs the support of all citizens to keep going.

Ira Hill, chairman of the public affairs group, has called for a meeting next Wednesday to discuss ways of assisting in moving the museum to a new location, preferably downtown.

"Have lawyers' fees gone up," shouted Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi across the legislative floor.

"You ought to know," chorled the opposition, referring to the minister's recent bout with the courts.

"It all depends whether you paid for that advice," someone else called out. "It is generally understood that the attorney general's department gave it for free—and it was, of course, wrong."

"The taxpayers are paying dearly for what we are hearing today," came back the highways minister, never at a loss for a word.

But the young Liberal MLA had the last word . . .

"We're waiting to see if the taxpayers paid your legal fees," said Mr. Macfarlane. "That's what we're waiting to find out."

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Please send me a membership blank for your "Old-Too-Soon, Smart-Too-Late Club." Here is my story and I hope you'll print it because if I had read such a letter eight years ago I wouldn't be writing to you now.

I started to go with a man who was married. He told me his wife was cold and she didn't understand him. He said I was the kind of woman he'd been looking for all his life. He begged me to wait until he could "work something out."

After three years of waiting I gave him an ultimatum. He promised he'd break the news to his wife as soon as he could put the house in shape to sell. It took over a year to get the place painted, re-shingled, landscaped and a patio added.

Then he pleaded with me to wait until his daughter graduated from high school. Another two years passed. After that his son became engaged, so naturally we had to wait until he was married. Another year shot. Then the daughter became engaged and we had to wait seven months for her to get married.

That wedding was last month. Now he tells me his wife is going through the menopause, and he's afraid to tell her because she's very nervous and the shock may be too much. When I told him that some women drag on with the change for 10 years he shrugged his shoulders and said "I just can't do this to her now."

Don't bother to give me any advice, Ann — right now I'm the world's best authority on this subject. In fact I can probably give you a few pointers to pass on to other Jackasses like myself. Thanks for

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREE

Bridge Quiz:
When each of the three other players enters the bidding
freely, the opener must suspect a great deal of distributional power around the table, or, perhaps,
something fishy in Copenhagen. His rebid, if any, should be selected accordingly.
Answers to Bridge
Quiz:
a. Double. You must warn against hearts and show that you have a spade suit
you would have the opportunity, East may even be psychic.
b. Pass. Although you are strong in both opponents' suits you are weak in your own.
c. Two clubs. Your minimum values in high cards should not stop you from rebidding your good six-card suit. There is implicit in this rebid the information that you cannot raise hearts.
d. One no trump. This free rebid clearly expresses your values and leaves the next step squarely up to partner. To pass now will create a problem if partner rebids two hearts.
e. Pass. You have a minimum hand and a barren distribution. Time enough to raise hearts if partner supports your clubs at his next turn.
f. Two hearts. Your minimum hand is worth 16 points in support of hearts. The free raise shows support without being unduly encouraging; with a better hand you would give a jump-raise.

TAKE

Time to inspect this lovely 10-year-old home, recently painted and vacant so you can move right in. Large 18x18 living room, dining area, electric kitchen, 4 bedrooms, 2 bathrooms. The basement is completely finished with 2 bedrooms, 1 bathroom and 12x20 recreation room. You can move right into this home for less than $11,000 with a low down payment and easy terms.

YOUR

Equity is secure in this 3-year-old, two-bedroom home designed by owners, but addition to family necessitates a move. The owners selected first-grade oak floor, for all except the kitchen, which was designed by the owner's wife, and convenience. The 4th bedroom is colored with a laundry chute to the basement. Plumbed for washer and dryer, and drive-in garage. Reasonably priced with only $1,500 down payment.

PICK

Your location when purchasing a home, in case you are transferred as the owner has been. This is the last home in this area with a good 6% NHA MORTGAGE. Situated above Lansdowne near the Uplands golf club and the new University. 15,000 sq. ft. for gracious living. 15x20 living room with raised hearth and dining room for a family suite. 2 large bedrooms, and colored bathroom with 2 stairs for convenience. Full basement with recreation area with rough-in plumbing. Heat, of course, by oil. The grounds are beautiful with a large landscaped patio. For appointments to view these homes and other quality properties, call F.R.A.N.K. C.A.R. EV 5-4741 (13th service). Northwestern Securities of Victoria Ltd.

ATTORNEY GENERAL

Strike-Freeze Talks On

By PETER BRITTON

B.C. Power Commission officials have been holding secret meetings with labor and contractors in a move to prevent strikes or lockouts during the duration of the Columbia River hydro power project, it was learned yesterday.

A hint of the negotiations was given in a speech by Attorney-General Robert Bonner in winding up the budget debate yesterday.

Later Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, chairman of the power commission, confirmed that there had been informal discussions between contractors and unions and himself.

There was no suggestion, he said, that wages be pegged for the 10-year duration of the project.

"The purpose was to ensure there is no stoppage of work," said Dr. Keenleyside. "The method of handling relations between unions and contractors was discussed. The talks were only preliminary but they were promising."

The situation came to light when Mr. Bonner warned that it was difficult to give a reliable estimate of the final costs of the $450,000,000 project because of factors which were hard to control.

He said this applied also with respect to costs associated with "hourly rates of pay and salaries."

"Great restraint will have to be part of the picture while the project is under way because we could be bargained out of existence," said the attorney-general.

"You know there have been discussions," said CCF leader Robert Strachan.

Mr. Bonner said it was a real problem and some sort of equation had to be worked out to prevent the situation from upsetting the cost of the whole project.

"All prices are involved," he said. "But a large part of the costs are those of hourly rates and salaries."

The attorney-general said that once the project was started there could be no turning back and large costs would ensue in penalty payments if the project wasn't completed on time.

RHODESIA ON WAR FOOTING

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (UPI)—Federal Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky put this country on a war footing yesterday and warned he will use "every means" to prevent Britain from extending voting rights to neighboring Northern Rhodesia's vast Negro population.

He cancelled leaves for 5,000 European and African policemen in Southern Rhodesia and put 10,000 police reservists on alert as the federation's racial crisis deepened. These new orders came only 48 hours after 3,000 militia reservists were called to active duty.

FIGHT PROPOSALS

Welensky also summoned the federal assembly into emergency session and said he will ask its support to fight the British proposals "by every means."

Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, both British protectorates, comprise a federation with Southern Rhodesia, which is a self-governing territory. Welensky is chief executive official of the federation.

British proposals to grant Negroes in Northern Rhodesia wider voting rights and a bigger role in the protectorate's government under a new constitution have stirred deep fears among British and European whites.

OUTNUMBER WHITES

Northern Rhodesia blacks outnumber whites by 2,200,000 to about 70,000. White leadership also is opposed to the move because Northern Rhodesia's copper belt provides most of the wealth for the tri-power federation.

The crisis has been complicated further by the dissatisfaction of black nationalists over Britain's proposals, but for a different reason. They feel Britain has not gone far enough in meeting their demands.

School Tax Howls Prove False Alarm

By R. O. MARRION

First howls over the provincial government's new school cost sharing plans dwindled yesterday with realization that there likely will be no major increase this year in local school taxation.

Municipal leaders, although disappointed at their failure to persuade the government to take over a greater percentage of total school costs, were relieved to find the taxpayers' outlook apparently not very much darker than before.

Education Minister Peterson said Thursday the basic mill rate for education operating costs will be increased this year from 12 mills in municipalities and nine in rural areas to 15 mills.

But the education department pays "approved" operating costs above revenue from this basic local taxation, and the minister announced an upward revision of teachers' salary scales the department will approve.

Saint Patrice

Ghana's Church of Africa Christian sect yesterday proclaimed slaughtered ex-Congo premier Patrice Lumumba a saint. Two aides slain with Lumumba were similarly proclaimed.

Murderer Chuckles At Death Sentence

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Nelson Langlois, 46, Friday was sentenced to hang June 16 for the murder of Oliva Martin, 63, and Eugene Dupuis, 67, last Oct. 2.

Courtroom witnesses said Langlois appeared to chuckle silently as he was sentenced.

Winter Work 'Lot of Hokum'

Municipalities are stuck with the major share of costs on winter work projects while the senior governments get "all the free publicity," Ald. Michael Griffin said last night.

He told a special public meeting called on behalf of city council to get a cross section of community views on winter works that the public was being misled by federal and provincial claims that are really "an awful lot of hokum."

"These senior governments are spending little on winter works and expecting the municipalities to pick up the

He said until the public is aware of the true situation "we are never going to have an honest-to-goodness winter works program."

ATTENDED BY 40

Ald. Geoffrey Edgell, chairman of council's public works committee which called the meeting attended by some 40 people in the council chamber, said 10 previous unemployed men had been working for the past four months on winter works projects in Victoria.

Alan Macfarlane, Liberal MLA for Oak Bay, said he was "shocked" to learn that only 10 jobs were filled.

MLAs ABSENT

The absence of all the other MLAs representing the Greater Victoria area was noted by Robert Barrie, president of Victoria Labor Council. He said the provincial government should insist on use of B.C. products in carrying out its contracts, thus providing more jobs here.

Ald. A. W. Toone said, however, the 10 jobs represented 800 man-hours of work. He pointed out that it could have been 100 men employed for a week or 800 men getting one day's work.

Ald. Toone urged local business groups to form action groups with creation of more jobs as their "No. 1 project." He said legislation exists under which aid for establishing new businesses can be obtained from Ottawa. But it is left up to local groups to take the initiative.

Nearly the Same

In the Greater Victoria school district, secretary-treasurer T. L. Christie estimated, the reduction in the share of teachers' salaries local taxpayers must pay may nearly balance the increase in the basic levy, so that the total school tax rate may stay nearly the same.

Similarly in rural Sooke school district, secretary-treasurer L. W. Wheelon thought the changes would have a counterbalancing effect. However, he feared the higher "approved" grant schedule for teachers' salaries might be treated as "a jumping off place" by teachers in future negotiations.

Mr. Peterson said on this in the legislature: "In the past there has been a tendency for teachers to interpret the salary grant schedule as a grant per teacher," he said, "which it definitely is not."

Mr. Christie estimated that on last year's assessment base an extra four mills of basic levy would bring in $872,000 more this year. But on top of last year's basic levy taxpayers had to pay at least $800,000 in "unapproved" teachers' salaries which they won't have to pay this year.

Mr. Wheelon thought that because Greater Victoria has more teachers at the top of the salary scale, the counterbalancing effect might not be quite as great in Sooke.

No More Hardship

Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell said: "I don't think the government would have any intention of creating any more hardship on the taxpayer at the present time."

He found encouragement in Mr. Peterson's reference to wanting a flexible basic mill rate so that, if the assessment base rises sharply, the mill rate can be reduced to keep the provincial share of B.C. education costs at least 50 per cent.

As a result of a new assessment formula for next year, relating assessments to current market values instead of values of several years ago, residential valuations in particular are expected to be brought to a much higher level.

Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich, who at first described the changes as "almost calamitous" and foresaw an increase of 2 1/2 mills in the school tax rate, modified his views in the light of the school officials' estimates.

"If the provincial government will pay at least their regular share," he said, "that will brighten the picture."

"But of course we maintain they should pay more. The Union of B.C. Municipalities take that stand, and the citizens take that stand."

Await Full Picture

Reeve George Murdoch of Oak Bay thought that "at the moment nobody knows for sure what the situation will be until they get the full picture, but the general feeling seems to be that it won't make a great deal of difference."

He clings to the view, however, that Ottawa should collect a certain portion of income tax for education, returning to the provinces the amount collected in each, earmarked for education. In addition there should be a small, set property tax—perhaps five mills—just to keep people aware of their responsibility in education.

"Because there's an increase in the basic mill rate," said

Reeve A. C. Wurtzle of Esquimalt, "that doesn't mean that there's going to be a great increase in taxes. I think it's a mistake for anybody to sound off when they don't know what's going to happen."

"I would look on it," said Greater Victoria school board chairman W. C. Gelling, "as a different formula with the same results."

The school board's "unapproved" costs, he said, have mainly been teachers' salaries above the provincial grant schedule.

Other unapproved costs can be protested by municipal councils, and taken to arbitration, "and that pressure has kept unapproved costs to a minimum."

Russian Bags Searched

STEYNING, England (Reuters)—Nikita Khrushchev's son-in-law angrily charged Friday that 31 Soviet students visiting Britain "had their luggage searched and scattered all over their rooms" at a London hotel Thursday night.

"Is this the way that Great Britain works for peaceful coexistence?" asked Alexei Adzubei, editor of Izvestia.

Adzubei made the charge before a British-Soviet conference here.

In London, Scotland Yard detectives said they had received "no complaints"

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—One of the leading U.S. scientists said Friday that the United States cannot win the race to put a man in space.

"We would do well not to bankrupt ourselves trying to come in second," he said. "We have plenty of other useful things to do."

Dr. L. A. Dubridge, president of the California Institute of Technology, said that before a man can be sent on a really useful space journey extreme safety and reliability of vehicles must be achieved.

"The Russians obviously have much larger rockets than we, and they could lift a man into space any time they chose."

"They know our plans and limitations. If I were a Russian I would wait, calmly perfecting my instruments and techniques, then send up my first man just a few months before the date the Americans announced for their first flight."

Slow Loading of Grain Disgusts Soviet Skipper

VANCOUVER (CP)—The ridiculous slowness of a Soviet ship's grain loading facilities in Vancouver complained it took him 12 days to load a grain shipment.

The Tiki, the first of five Soviet ships here to pick up a total of 200,000 tons of grain, took 12 days to take on its 10,700-ton shipment, and on one day loaded only 700 tons, he said in an interview.

The ship's skipper, Capt. Ivan Neschadimov, said he was disgusted with what he called done what I think is a poor sort of justice. I shall go to jail," Mrs. Conway said Friday.

She added: "It should be interesting. When I expect to begin my jail term my brother is coming from England to visit us."

We'll Back You —South Africa

SALISBURY (Reuters)—White leaders of Rhodesia Friday received South Africa's direct support for keeping power in their hands.

... stand together

Eric Louw, South African external affairs minister, voiced his support in Cape Town as Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky of the Rhodesian-Nyasaland federation faced a mounting crisis here.

Louw, speaking in Parliament, said South Africa and Northern and Southern Rhodesia must stand together "to preserve white civilization" in their countries.

Amid cheers from government supporters, Louw said the time might come when South Africa, the Portuguese territories and Rhodesia would have to stand together to maintain western civilization in Africa.

South Africa long has exerted a strong influence in white-dominated Southern Rhodesia. This influence undoubtedly would grow more powerful if Welensky carries out a veiled threat to seek independence from Britain.

Mother's Scream Speeds Judge

VANCOUVER (CP)—A mother screamed at Mr. Justice A. M. Manson when he sentenced her son in assize court Friday to 15 years in prison on a charge of rape.

It was the judge's final appearance in court before his retirement.

He had just sentenced Kenneth Rudolph Muggli, 20, of Vancouver, convicted of raping a 19-year-old girl on Nov. 11.

Muggli's mother screamed from the rear of the court.

"Oh, no, it's not right to sentence my son like that."

"You're..." screamed the woman before she could be taken from the courtroom by RCMP.

The justice also sentenced John Armand Watt, 32, of Vancouver, to 25 years in prison on a separate charge of raping a 28-year-old mother of three last Dec. 11.

The sentences were followed by tribute from counsel to the judge for his long service on the bench.

Mother Picks Jail Over 'Poor Justice'

OTTAWA (CP)—Sir Thomas Lees, high sheriff of Dorset, England, may find his sister in an Ottawa jail when he pays a family visit in two months.

The sister, Mrs. D. J. Conway, intends to serve a jail sentence to protest a "poor sort of justice"—conviction for speeding last December.

She pleaded guilty in court to travelling 46 miles an hour. Then the mother of eight and wife of a city paediatrician explained:

"My three-month-old child had just recovered from bronchitis and was getting some fresh air in the pram in the back yard. I was up town picking up another child at the eye doctors. A heavy rainstorm broke and I was rushing home to get the baby inside before the pram was engulfed."

Sorry, the court ruled, but since Mrs. Conway had pleaded guilty, there was no alternative but to assess a $22 fine or four days in jail.

"I shall not finance or condone what I think is a poor sort of justice. I shall go to jail," Mrs. Conway said Friday.

Huge 35-Foot Log Kills Man in Copper Canyon

BUNCAN — A 54-year-old logger was killed yesterday when a huge 35-foot log crushed him in Copper Canyon. Inquest into the death of Albert James Rutan, a Trunk Road resident, will be held Monday night.

"It is a thing that could happen to anyone in the woods," said his shocked partner, Leon Foucher, Festubert Street. "You can't see every

"It was a log, four feet across the butt, that had been felled the day before," explained Mr. Foucher who broke the news to his friends widow. "It was teetering, not on level ground."

"When he bucked the log he was working on, part of it must have fallen and hit an end of the log that rolled down and killed him."

"It rolled on top of him, partly pushing him into the ground. There was no pulse. I dug out a hole to give him air but he was dead."

"I don't think he saw it coming. It hit him on the back. I don't think he felt a thing."

"I was 85 or 90 feet from him and didn't hear any cries. I called and I couldn't hear an answer and I found him under the log."

Mr. Rutan had been working for MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co. since last May. He was a logger for nearly 30 years.

The funeral has tentatively been set for Tuesday.

He is survived by his wife, here, and two married daughters.

Fifth Village For Old Folk

COURTENAY — Fifth Kiwanis Village for senior citizens on Vancouver Island was given the go ahead here Thursday.

A meeting of the local Kiwanis Club approved an order for architect's working drawings after deciding on electric heating as the safest for elderly people.

Construction of the first $35,000 section is expected to begin this fall, said Doug Inkster, vice-chairman of the village society. Later expansion of the scheme by another five or 10 units could bring the ul-imate investment to well over $100,000, he said.

Other Kiwanis villages have been built at Victoria, Duncan, Nanaimo and Port Alberni.

Mr. Inkster said the village society is now working on a plan for a second section.

Cobble Hill Rite Today For Pioneer of Trail of '98

COBBLE HILL — One of the pioneers of the "Trail of '98" to the Yukon goldfields will be buried here today.

He is Arthur Wilton Compin, 89, who went to the north in 1898. He shot the Yukon River in a canoe and travelled hundreds of miles by dog sled.

Mr. Compin died Thursday at Mary Moore Hospital at Cobble Hill. He was born in London, Ont., and educated at Trinity College School, Port Hope.

He was a bank employee before heading north. While in the Yukon he worked as a gold teller and ore evaluator to get money to prospect. Mr. Compin was a member of the Vancouver Yukoners' Association and the Arctic Brotherhood.

After failing to make his fortune in gold he went to Vancouver and sold life insurance. Later he farmed near here for 22 years before retiring to Mill Bay.

Surviving are his wife, Ruby; a daughter, Mrs. Florence Helen Macdonald, Ottawa; three grandchildren and two sisters.

Funeral services will start at 2 p.m. in St. John's Church at Cobble Hill. Burial will follow in the churchyard cemetery.

Chatterton Under Fire For Playing Politics

Saanich Reeve George Chatterton came under fire in the legislature yesterday for "playing politics."

When Alan Macfarlane (L-Oak Bay) used Reeve Chatterton's quotes, reported in yesterday's Colonist as stating the proposed new school cost formula will be "almost calamitous" he met immediate objections from Waldo Skillings (SC-Victoria).

"That's politics... That's Chatterton," Mr. Skillings shouted across the floor.

Mr. Chatterton, a week ago, won the Conservative nomination to contest the Esquimalt-Saanich federal seat in a by-election.

Welfare Issue

Speaker Checks Bruch Heckling

Hubert Bruch, Esquimalt, across the floor," demanded Speaker Hugh Shantz after several unsuccessful attempts to stop the interruptions.

These are the organizations and individuals listed by Mr. Bruch and heckled by Mr. Harding:

Provincial Council of Women; Prof. W. G. Dickson, director of UBC school of social workers; David Woodworth, director of Victoria Family and Children's Service; petition of United Church of Canada with 2,139 signatures, asking for investigation; Dr. J. D. McCann, provincial consultant for the Association of Retarded Children of B.C.

B.C. Association of Social Workers; Family Service Agency of Greater Vancouver; Greater Vancouver Community Chest; T. Boyd Haskell of Community Chest; social welfare administrator for Saanich Frank Heaton; Dr. C. J. M. Willoughby, president of B.C. Association of Community Funds and Councils; Father J. E. Reiter, executive director of Catholic Children's Aid Society; Philip Lipp, director of B.C. Catholic Children's Aid Society; Mrs. H. L. Horan, president of the 52,000-member Parent-Teacher Federation; James Rowan, eminent U.S. penologist and social worker who spoke in Vancouver; D. W. Fowler, president of the B.C. Association of Social Workers.

"That's a terrific amount of evidence... and not from the CCF," Mr. Harding said.

Ex-Newsman Posted East

Lieut. David Stock, a former Victoria newspaperman now serving with the Canadian Army at Chilliwack, has been posted to the Middle East.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Stock, live at 3143 Cedar Hill Road.

American Destroyers Here for Weekend

Two American destroyers carrying a total of 28 officers and 310 men on a reserve training cruise from the Puget Sound area are visiting Esquimalt for the weekend. USS Watts and USS Walton arrived at 2 p.m. yesterday and are scheduled to sail at 8 a.m. Monday.

Cruel

Owners Leave Dogs

Cruel and callous dog owners are abandoning their pets to avoid paying for new licences, an SPCA official charged last night.

Norman Stephens, secretary-manager of the Victoria SPCA branch, said he expects about 100 additional dogs will be abandoned within the next six weeks.

"These people are callous—that's all they are. callous and cruel," he said. "They not only turn their pets out onto the street, but they take off their licence tags so the owners can't be traced."

"All they have to do is phone us at EV-3-0514 and we'll send a truck out to collect the dog and find it a home. Pet dogs abandoned like this don't know how to take care of themselves—they get run over or they are a nuisance to everyone."

Extended Runways Likely, Says Reeve

Reeve George Chatterton said last night he is "very optimistic" that runways at Patricia Bay airport will soon be lengthened to 6,000 feet from the present length of 5,000 feet.

He said this at a meeting of the Saanich Progressive Conservative Association in Sidney. Reeve Chatterton is the Conservative candidate in the forthcoming Esquimalt-Saanich federal by-election.

"I understand that TCA is having some difficulty in landing some aircraft at Patricia Bay in bad weather," he said. "I immediately got in touch with Ottawa and impressed them that I thought they should investigate the situation very thoroughly."

Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt wants the federal government to leave the RCN Reserve at HMCS Malahat and use the money it saves to build a new building for the B.C. Maritime Museum.

He was commenting on a suggestion that the naval reserve might vacate its headquarters, HMCS Malahat on Wharf Street in Victoria, and move into the Begg building at Yates and Quadra. The museum would then occupy HMCS Malahat.

"It is entirely up to the museum board where they locate but personally I am disappointed that they would use the Malahat," he said. "I know the building and it isn't any better than the one they have now."

"There is no parking at all down there for visitors and it seems to me quite a waste of public funds for the reserve division to locate in such a big place as the Begg building."

Esquimalt council has offered to donate a museum site on Rock Heights if money can be found for a building.

No Phone Service For Hours

CAMPBELL RIVER—Some 1,200 telephone subscribers were without service for more than six hours here late Thursday when a wire-splicing furnace exploded where telephone servicemen were working on an underground cable.

No one was injured, but a main cable was burned out about 4 p.m. Essential services were restored to the hospital and other buildings about 5.30 p.m. and other lines were functioning by 10.30 p.m.

Wry Williams Withholds Wax Wonder's Welcome

DUNCAN—David Williams, president of the chamber of commerce, has refused to say a few words of welcome to a wax figure of Queen Victoria. Mr. Williams, a lawyer, said that as patriotic as he is, he certainly would not address himself to a wax model.

Mrs. Avis Walton, representing the Victoria Waxworks Museum which is sending the model on a tour, asked the chamber to stage a reception. "She will be stopping here for half an hour," said Mrs. Walton in asking Mr. Williams to officially welcome "the queen."

Mr. Williams also objected to Mrs. Walton referring to the model as "she." He said she should approach the Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire for a reception.

"Quite possibly they would be interested in your proposal."

Around the Island

Sea-Size Cargo Ships Will Serve B.C. Coast

CAMPBELL RIVER—Two ocean-size passenger-cargo ships and two smaller vessels for service along the British Columbia coast are to be built for Northland Navigation Company.

Capt. H. J. C. Terry, company president, made the announcement here Thursday. He said the ships will be built soon, possibly in Holland.

The vessels will cost $3,000,000 each, will be 30 feet long, with a speed of 18 knots, and will carry 98 passengers and 3,000 tons of cargo, he said.

The first of the 3,700-ton ships will be ready for service by May, 1962, and will call at Beaver Cove, Port Hardy, Bella Coola, Ocean Falls, Kitimat, Prince Rupert, Campbell River and Vancouver.

The ships will have hatches flush with the deck and will be able to carry 35 cars on deck and more in the hold.

Capt. Terry said if the new Ship Construction Act passes parliament next Monday, the ships will be built in Canada and not in Holland as is now planned.

Under the Act, designed to assist Canadian shipyards to meet foreign competition, the federal government will pay the entire extra cost of construction in Canada.

DUNCAN—The new junior high school to be built in the townsite near Alexander School has been named "Quamichan" by the school board.

Such suggestions as Aquas, Flamingo, Mallard, Tzinquas, Lakeside, Oakview and Oak Wood were discarded.

Health Minister Eric Martin has asked by two groups to stop construction of the school. They allege that flooding in the area and poor sewage conditions constitute a health hazard.

QUALICUM BEACH—P. J. Eggersman was elected president of the Qualicum Beach Chamber of Commerce, succeeding H. R. Haynes. Others elected to office at the group's recent meeting were James H. White, secretary-treasurer; Ted Laver, Orlan Rye, George Cooper, Mrs. R. Smyth, Alex Smith and Charles Darkis, directors.

A resolution will be drafted and sent to the annual meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island, urging that the Qualicum Beach cut-off highway be completed at the earliest possible time.

Orlan Rye and James White will represent the chamber at the March 6 annual meeting of the Qualicum Jamboree Day committee.

PARKSVILLE—W. G. Wheeler was re-elected as chief of Parksville volunteer fire department at a recent annual meeting and election of officers. Eric Parsley was re-elected secretary, and Guy Moore, treasurer.

The annual report showed a year of progress highlighted by three successful projects. These were a course in fire protection for baby-sitters, a first-aid course and a fire protection week program.

All projects were financed from proceeds of the firemen's ball, which is an annual Yuletide event.

COURTENAY—First full-fledged promotion of the Comox district in many years will be launched in six weeks with the distribution of a colorful tourist brochure.

Pat Fox, Chamber of Commerce brochure chairman, reports 50,000 folders containing no advertising will be available for distribution. A map and 18 four-color photographs will portray the entire district from Fanny Bay to Saratoga Beach.

Cost of $3,800 will be met by voluntary contributions.

NANAIMO—The Canadian Pacific Railway ferry Princess Patricia returned to the Vancouver-Nanaimo run today. The vessel had been out of service one month while damaged plates were repaired and she underwent her annual overhaul.

QUALICUM BEACH—Contingent on the municipal and rural assessed values for 1961 remaining unchanged, and the basis for government evaluation of shareable and non-shareable school costs remaining the same, this year's school budget for District 69 (Qualicum) may show a slight decrease.

This was brought out when the school board reviewed and passed a provisional budget setting the municipal school tax rate at about 17.09 mills.

compared with 17.81 mills last year.

Parksville municipality last year allocated 18 mills of their overall 32.43 tax mill rate to school needs, while Qualicum Beach allocated 17.80 mills for schools from an overall 34.25 mill rate.

QUALICUM BEACH—Some 400 parishioners, guests and friends attended the opening ceremonies of the new St. Stephen's United Church, said to be one of the most beautiful on Vancouver Island.

Rev. Roy Rodgers, Alberni, chairman of Comox Nanaimo Presbytery, gave the salutation. Dedication of the church and furnishings was performed by Rev. Robert Moses, incumbent pastor, and president of the B.C. Conference.

PARKSVILLE—Plans for a bean supper to be held Friday, March 10, were completed at the regular meeting of ladies auxiliary to Mt. Arrowmith Branch of the Canadian Legion.

Mrs. A. D. Braddock was named convener and a film program will form a part of the entertainment.

A motion was approved to donate $15 to the Legion scholarship fund.

NANAIMO—A 21-foot cabin cruiser valued at $6,000, stolen last night from a Nanaimo marina, is being sought along the coast of Vancouver Island and the lower mainland.

Police said the boat theft followed the escape of two youths from the Brannan Lake Boys' Industrial School Thursday night, and burglary of a private home. Food was also stolen from a number of other boats on the Nanaimo waterfront.

CAMPBELL RIVER—Crown Zellerbach Canada Limited will shut down its No. 1 newsprint machine at Elk Falls, near Campbell River, next month for a $360,000 rebuilding job.

The work on the machine will take about five days and will begin March 6.

DUNCAN—Tickets for the March 4 to 11 Cowichan Music Festival will go on sale at the Colonist office, 30 Kenneth, on Monday.

A $2 ticket covers the week-long festival as well as the final night honors performance.

DUNCAN—A Lake Cowichan truck driver, Tarlok Singh Parhar, 42, lost his driver's licence for 30 days yesterday and was fined $150 for impaired driving.

Parhar pleaded guilty after a test showed the alcohol content of his blood was .27 per cent. Police said a .15 analysis is considered impaired.

The charge was laid after a car Parhar was driving hit a telephone pole last month on Hospital Hill and caused $400 damage.

Also in court, Apprentice Seaman J. F. Dowdall, HMCS Naden, was fined $25 for careless driving after crashing his car off the highway. He pleaded guilty.

"You're lucky, from what I can see on this police diagram, that you weren't killed," said Magistrate A. C. Sutton.

In a case waived from Nanaimo, Alex Foster of Cowichan Bay, was fined $20 for speeding 15 miles an hour over the 30-mile limit Feb. 15. He pleaded guilty.

COURTENAY—A Victoria woman has been named adjudicator of the 1961 North Island Drama Festival at Courtenay in April.

Mrs. Eleanor Hewitt will pick the three best one-act plays from at least nine entries for an honor night April 29. Awards also will go to the best play, director, actor and actress and to the best supporting actor and actress at the honor performance.

The best play later will represent the region at the B.C. finals to be held at Victoria in May.

CAMPBELL RIVER—Members of the Campbell River Order of the Eastern Star cancer dressing committee last year made up close to 5,000 dressings and distributed more than 1,000 to local cases.

Fourteen local cancer patients were assisted by the order with transportation supplied to treatment centres in Nanaimo, Vancouver and Victoria, according to the committee's chairman, Mrs. R. Bowen.

COURTENAY—RCMP constable Ned Nedzelski proved himself an outstanding talker this week.

He won the right over five other contenders to represent local toastmasters at an area speech contest March 11 in Qualicum. His topic: "Enthusiasm."

Profits in Real Estate Just Matter of Degree

Peter Bruton's Capital Notebook

THE HARD SELL: Our informant on pocket book matters, Agent X3, reports that publishers are re-lauding some of their books with punchier and harder-hitting titles designed to stimulate sales and sometimes the buyer.

Case in point is a book previously titled: "How to Buy Real Estate for Profit."

New title: "How to Buy Real Estate for Spectacular Profit."

COMEDY SHOW: When Attorney-General Robert Bonner was winding up the budget debate yesterday he became incensed at the sight of the CCF Dewdney member David Barrett, loling in his seat, a wide grin crinkling across his face.

"I'd like to know why the honorable member finds this amusing," said Mr. Bonner a little huffily.

"I find it amusing because I disagree with you," retorted the CCFer.

"You can disagree with me," snapped an annoyed attorney-general, "but you don't have to sit there giggling!"

PART IMPERFECT: Advertisement in a Vancouver newspaper the other day was headed: "How to Speak and Write Like a College Graduate."

Now surely that's a sign our education standards are slipping because that just isn't grammatical, my friends.

(Correct way of phrasing it: "How to Speak and Write as a College Graduate Does.")

PRETTY PICTURES: Long Beach and the Alberni's are given the glory treatment in the latest issue of the government's $8-page, four-color Beautiful British Columbia magazine.

There are also five pages on "Victoria, Spring Flower Headquarters."

High quality color work has been joined by a considerable increase in text with close to 10,000 words of information relating to B.C. beauty spots ranging from this area to the Alaska Highway and from Lillooet to Nelson and Creston. It will go on the newsstands next week.

WARNING SIGN: At a Victoria Chamber of Commerce public affairs group dinner the other evening Bud Simpson introduced guest speaker Highway Minister Phil Gaglardi.

As a highways minister, said Mr. Simpson, Mr. Gaglardi would go down in history as did the Caesars of Rome.

This year the minister should beware of the idea of March ... his departmental estimates should be coming up at that time.

SHARP RETORT: Oak Bay's Alan Macfarlane was explaining about the economy in general and the increased cost of living.

"Have lawyers' fees gone up," shouted Highway Minister Phil Gaglardi across the legislative floor.

"You ought to know," chorled the opposition, referring to the minister's recent bout with the courts.

"It all depends whether you paid for that advice," someone else called out. It is generally understood that the attorney-general's department gave it for free—and it was, of course, wrong.

"The taxpayers are paying dearly for what we are hearing today," came back the highways minister, never at a loss for a word.

But the young Liberal MLA had the last word...

"We're waiting to see if the taxpayers paid your legal fees," said Mr. Macfarlane. "That's what we're waiting to find out."

Rhodesia On War Footing

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (UPI)—Federal Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky put this country on a war footing yesterday and warned he will use "every means" to prevent Britain from extending voting rights to neighboring Northern Rhodesia's vast Negro population.

He cancelled leaves for 5,000 European and African police men in Southern Rhodesia and put 10,000 police reservists on alert as the federation's racial crisis deepened. These new orders came only 48 hours after 3,000 militia reservists were called to active duty.

FIGHT PROPOSALS

Welensky also summoned the federal assembly into emergency session and said he will ask its support to fight the British proposals "by every means."

Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, both British protectorates, comprise a federation with Southern Rhodesia, which is a self-governing territory. Welensky is chief executive official of the federation.

British proposals to grant Negroes in Northern Rhodesia wider voting rights and a bigger role in the protectorate's government under a new constitution have stirred deep fears among British and European whites.

OUTNUMBER WHITES

Northern Rhodesia blacks outnumber whites by 2,200,000 to about 70,000. White leadership also is opposed to the move because Northern Rhodesia's copper belt provides most of the wealth for the tri-power federation.

The crisis has been complicated further by the dissatisfaction of black nationalists over Britain's proposals, but for a different reason. They feel Britain has not gone far enough in meeting their demands.

Eight Men Feared Lost

VANCOUVER (CP)—Eight men, all from the greater Vancouver area, are believed lost in the sinking of a 65-foot seine fishing vessel, the Northview, in storm-tossed Finlayson Channel 300 miles northwest of here.

We'll Back You —South Africa

SALISBURY (Reuters)—White leaders of Rhodesia Friday received South Africa's direct support for keeping power in their hands.

... stand together

Eric Louw, South African external affairs minister, voiced his support in Cape Town as Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky of the Rhodesian-Nyasaland federation faced a mounting crisis here.

Louw, speaking in Parliament, said South Africa and Northern and Southern Rhodesia must stand together "to preserve white civilization" in their countries.

Amid cheers from government supporters, Louw said the time might come when South Africa, the Portuguese territories and Rhodesia would have to stand together to maintain western civilization in Africa.

South Africa long has exerted a strong influence in white-dominated Southern Rhodesia. This influence undoubtedly will grow more powerful if Welensky carries out a veiled threat to seek independence from Britain.

Mother's Scream Speeds Judge

VANCOUVER (CP)—A mother screamed at Mr. Justice A. M. Manson when he sentenced her son in assize court Friday to 15 years in prison on a charge of rape.

It was the judge's final appearance in court before his enforced retirement.

He had just sentenced Kenneth Rudolph Muggill, 20, of Vancouver, convicted of raping a 19-year-old girl on Nov. 11.

Muggill's mother screamed from the rear of the court.

"Oh, no, it's not right to sentence my son like that."

"You're..." screamed the woman before she could be taken from the courtroom by RCMP.

The justice also sentenced John Armand Watt, 32, of Vancouver, to 25 years in prison on a separate charge of raping a 28-year-old mother of three last Dec. 11.

The sentences were followed by tribute from counsel to the judge for his long service on the bench.

STRIKE FREEZE DUE?

Columbia Pact Urged

By PETER BRITON

B.C. Power Commission officials have been holding secret meetings with labor and contractors in a move to prevent strikes or lockouts during the duration of the Columbia River hydro power project, it was learned yesterday.

A hint of the negotiations was given in a speech by Attorney General Robert Bonner in winding up the budget debate yesterday.

Later Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, chairman of the power commission, confirmed that there had been informal discussions between contractors and unions and himself.

There was no suggestion, he said, that wages be pegged for the 18-year duration of the project.

The purpose was to ensure there is no stoppage of work, said Dr. Keenleyside. The method of handling relations between unions and contractors was discussed. The talks were only preliminary but they were promising.

The situation came to light when Mr. Bonner warned that it was difficult to give a reliable estimate of the final costs of the $450,000,000 project because of factors which were hard to control.

He said this applied also with respect to costs associated with "hourly rates of pay and salaries."

"Great restraint will have to be part of the picture while the project is under way because we could be bargaining out of existence," said the attorney general.

"You know there have been discussions," said CCF leader Robert Strachan.

Mr. Bonner said it was a real problem and some sort of equation had to be worked out to prevent the situation from upsetting the cost of the whole project.

"All prices are involved," he said. "But a large part of the costs are those of hourly rates and salaries."

The attorney general said that once the project was started there could be no turning back and large costs would ensue in penalty payments if the project wasn't completed on time.

School Tax Howls Prove False Alarm

By R. O. MARRION

First howls over the provincial government's new school cost sharing plans dwindled yesterday with realization that there likely will be no major increase this year in local school taxation.

Municipal leaders, although disappointed at their failure to persuade the government to take over a greater percentage of total school costs, were relieved to find the taxpayers' outlook apparently not very much darker than before.

Education Minister Peterson said Thursday the basic mill rate for education operating costs will be increased this year from 12 mills in municipalities and nine in rural areas to 16 mills.

But the education department pays "approved" operating costs above revenue from this basic local taxation, and the minister announced an upward revision of teachers' salary scales the department will approve.

Kidnapped?

This is Edith Kleorius, 4, who disappeared Wednesday afternoon from sidewalk in front of relative's home in New York. Search by 100 detectives and 25 members of emergency squads has failed to turn up any trace of her.—(AP Photofax.)

Nearly the Same

In the Greater Victoria school district, secretary-treasurer T. L. Christie estimated, the reduction in the share of teachers' salaries local taxpayers must pay may nearly balance the increase in the basic levy, so that the total school tax rate may stay nearly the same.

Similarly in rural Sooke school district, secretary-treasurer L. W. Wheelton said he thought the changes would have a counterbalancing effect. However, he feared the higher "approved" grant schedule for teachers' salaries might be treated as a "jumping off place" by teachers in future negotiations.

Mr. Peterson said on this in the legislature: "In the past there has been a tendency for teachers to interpret the salary grant schedule as a grant per teacher," he said, "which it definitely is not."

Mr. Christie estimated that on last year's assessment base an extra four mills of basic levy would bring in $872,000 more this year. But on top of last year's basic levy, taxpayers had to pay at least $800,000 in "unapproved" teachers' salaries which they won't have to pay this year.

Mr. Wheelton thought that because Greater Victoria has more teachers at the top of the salary scale, the counterbalancing effect might not be quite as great in Sooke.

Russian Bags

Searched

STEYNING, England (Reuters)—Nikita Khrushchev's son-in-law angrily charged Friday that 31 Soviet students visiting Britain "had their luggage searched and scattered all over their rooms" at a London hotel Thursday night.

"Is this the way that Great Britain works for peaceful co-existence?" asked Alexei Adzubei, editor of Izvestia.

Adzubei made the charge before a British-Soviet conference here.

In London, Scotland Yard detectives said they had received "no complaints."

Murderer Chuckles At Death Sentence

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Nelson Langlois, 46, Friday was sentenced to hang June 16 for the murder of Oliva Martin, 63, and Eugene Dupuis, 67, last Oct. 2.

Courtroom witnesses said Langlois appeared to chuckle silently as he was sentenced.

Winter Work 'Lot of Hokum'

Municipalities are stuck with the major share of costs on winter work projects while the senior governments get "all the free publicity," Ald. Michael Griffin said last night.

He told a special public meeting called on behalf of city council to get a cross-section of community views on winter works that the public was being misled by federal and provincial claims that are really "an awful lot of hokum."

"These senior governments are spending little on winter works and expecting the municipalities to pick up the major share of costs," said Ald. Griffin. "We have a file three-quarters of an inch thick, filled with approved winter works projects. But with its limited funds the city isn't able to go ahead."

He said until the public is aware of the true situation "we are never going to have an honest-to-goodness winter works program."

ATTENDED BY 40

Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood, chairman of council's public works committee which called the meeting attended by some 40 people in the council chamber, said 10 previous unemployed men had been working for the past four months on winter works projects in Victoria.

Alan Macfarlane, Liberal MLA for Oak Bay, said he was "shocked" to learn that only 10 jobs were filled.

MLAs ABSENT

The absence of all the other MLAs representing the Greater Victoria area was noted by Robert Barrie, president of Victoria Labor Council. He said the provincial government should insist on use of B.C. products in carrying out its contracts, thus providing more jobs here.

Ald. A. W. Toone said, however, the 10 jobs represented 800 man-hours of work. He pointed out that it could have been 100 men employed for a week or 800 men getting one hour's work.

FIRST PROJECT

Ald. Toone urged local business groups to form action groups with creation of more jobs as their "No. 1 project." He said legislation exists under which aid for establishing new businesses can be obtained from Ottawa. But it is left up to local groups to take the initiative.

Slow Loading of Grain Disgusts Soviet Skipper

VANCOUVER (CP)—The ridiculous slowness of shipper of a Soviet ship yesterday complained it took him 12 days to load a grain shipment.
